The image displays two screenshots of a SharePoint interface. The top screenshot shows the 'Sportstugan' site with a sidebar menu containing 'Home', 'Conversations', 'Documents', 'Notebook', 'Pages', 'Ski Facilities in the No...', and 'Site contents'. The main content area is titled 'Skidgruppen1' and includes a 'News' section with an 'Add' button. The bottom screenshot shows the 'Sportstugan' site with a sidebar menu containing 'Home', 'Documents', 'Pages', 'Site contents', and 'Edit'. The main content area is titled 'Ekonomi' and includes a 'Welcome! Select Edit at the top right of the page to start customizing' message. A large orange banner reads 'Learn more about your Communication site'. The right sidebar shows 'Site Information' with fields for 'Site name' (Ekonomi), 'Site description', 'Hub site association' (Sportstugan), and 'Last template used' (Standard communication). It also includes links for 'View template history', 'View all site settings', and 'Delete site', along with 'Save' and 'Cancel' buttons.

Here I edit the site to add some useful frames like a clock for Sweden or a news frame and useful links

The screenshot displays the SharePoint site editor interface. At the top, a navigation bar includes options like 'Save as draft', 'Undo', 'Discard changes', 'Page details', and 'Analytics'. Below this, the main content area is divided into columns. A tooltip 'Add a new web part in column one' is visible. A search bar is present, and a dropdown menu shows 'Frequently used' web parts: Quick links, Events, News, and World clock. Another dropdown menu shows 'Text, media, and content' web parts: Banner, Button, Call to action, Divider, and Hero. The right sidebar contains 'Web parts', 'Stock images', and 'Section templates' sections. The bottom of the page shows a 'SharePoint' header and a search bar.

For the whole assignment I add a random type of document to improve the work, and I feel like this type of document maybe it didn't match the column types that I created but hope that will be understood from your side. Thank you very much
